

Meal Entertainment –
Some takeaway and home delivery now available

Frequently asked questions.

Can I use my Meal Entertainment Wallet card for takeaway and home delivery?

Yes, the ATO has temporarily relaxed taxation rules around Meal Entertainment and is now allowing takeaway and home delivered meals.

How does it work?

Your Maxxia Wallet can now be used for takeaway/delivery as long as the supplier was an allowable Meal Entertainment supplier as of 1 March 2020.

Please note the change will allow takeaway and home delivered meals to be purchased from restaurants that would normally accept your Meal Entertainment Wallet, if you were able to dine in.

What if I normally send in claims, can I claim for takeaway and home delivery?

Yes, simply lodge your claims via the Maxxia app as you normally would.

Can I use my Meal Entertainment Wallet card with delivery services?

Yes. This includes some meals ordered through delivery platforms such as Deliveroo, Menulog and Uber Eats, where they deliver for the permitted restaurants.

I have used my Meal Entertainment Wallet card to purchase takeaway using UberEats previously but it has declined or the transaction was taken from my Living Expenses benefit, what has changed?

In line with the recent announcement by the ATO we have enabled these delivery services to now come through as Meal Entertainment transactions.

When does this change come into effect?

This change is effective 1 March 2020 and will be applicable until 31 March 2021.

Can I claim purchases prior to 1 March 2020?

No only transactions from 1 March 2020 until 31 March 2021 will be allowable.
